180-Member Veterans' Club Larger Than Camino Faculty

Claiming the distinction of holding the largest membership of any single organization on the campus of El Camino College is Chi Gamma Iota, student veterans' organization. Boasting a membership of 180, the GI group outnumbers even the combined faculty-administration group.

Herb Rosenkrantz, president of the group was organized with 30 charter members. Since its addition to the campus program, it has come to be known best for the help and assistance which it has offered to El Camino students, the chairman indicated.

Named 'Outstanding' The student Federation of Veterans named the El Camino chapter "the most outstanding veterans' club in California" this year in recognition of the numerous and varied services which the fraternity has performed.

One of the newest student services initiated by the vets is . . . Perry PTA

Parent Satisfied One parent said, "I'm satisfied with double sessions. At home we teach our own children. Other parents should do that, instead of moaning about the schools. They are too lazy to teach their children."

Protesting against what he termed "high-handed and undemocratic conduct" of Mrs. Doher, who was presiding, Weaver resigned after the meeting.

Weaver and Mrs. Doher disagreed over his rendition of the treasurer's report. After an angry exchange, he declined to give the report, whereupon another member of the PTA moved that his office be declared vacant. Before a vote was taken, he read the report, but later resigned.

Librarian Quits Several days previously, Mrs. Gordon Lee, Perry PTA librarian, had resigned after a disagreement with other PTA officers.

Speaking in support of his resolution, Freedman noted that Governor Knight had pointed out that school finance in California had not kept pace with the state's annual income, dropping about one per cent since 1933.

Freedman quoted the governor as urging delegates to the Governor's Conference on Education to return to their communities, organize town meetings, talk to local clubs, organizations, and public officials to insure better education.

"We certainly cannot blame school authorities for something that is the fault of the very people who want better schools," Freedman said. "Public officials are culpable to the extent that they have failed to take the initiative in creating the necessary public interest to raise the required funds. Nobody is popular who advocates increased taxes, and after all, running for office, to a large extent, is a popularity contest."

the used book exchange, where students may buy or sell books at the beginning of each college semester.

Chi Gamma Iota sponsors Christmas parties and picnics for the boys' home at Junipers Serra annually. During a recent drive for textbooks to be sent to a Korean university, the club was active in collecting and packaging books for the damaged institution.

Offers Loan Fund Serving its members as well as the student enrollment, the club initiated a loan fund for veterans of the college this year. It is using profits obtained from its book exchange and will charge no interest on the loans.

Sportswise, the Vets' club has dominated El Camino's intramural program for the past two years. In the touch football and softball tournaments, they have placed first and second teams in the final play.

Not content with mere numerical supremacy, President Rosenkrantz continues to conduct a membership campaign, hoping to offer the facilities of the organization to a larger percentage of former servicemen.

Sponsors of the club are Harold R. Wolpert, William L. Davies, Jr., and Richard M. Bosson, all of the college faculty.

Currently assisting Rosenkrantz, Hermosa Beach, on the executive committee are Ed Martinez, Inglewood, vice president; Mike Cafaricha, Inglewood, secretary; and Duane Jackman, Redondo Beach, treasurer.
